IN FASHION NOW

Bright make-up is in fashion for the fall and winter months to keep pace with the bright colors of the new clothes. It seems the mousy, lacklustre hair colors are not in keeping with all this brightness.

If you are so inclined, there are any number of things you can do to make your hair more attractive. Some of the more old-fashioned of us think that frequent shampooing, a good hairbrush and the proper diet are enough. However, if you are interested, you can tint your hair bleach it, streak it, highlight it or change the color altogether.

Hair coloring materials come under two headings: those whose effect is temporary and those referred to as tints or dyes. The permanent colors are of two types: those that coat the hair and those which penetrate into the hair shaft.

The temporary rinses have a softening effect on the hair and leave it soft and shining. This seems to be the best for your money. No matter what the style is to be really attractive, one must remain natural looking. Too often a dyed head looks just like what it is and no more.

Want 1,300,000 Pine Seedlings Planted

The third and final year of the Governor's Plant More Trees program was launched in Albermarle, Amherst, Appomattox, Buckingham and Nelson Counties on September 18, when new tree planting goals for those counties were made public. The occasion was a joint meeting of county forestry committees at Dillwyn, held under the auspices of Virginia Forests, Inc., and the Mead Corporation of Lynchburg.

Goals for the 1957-58 tree planting season, as announced by William E. Cooper, executive director of Virginia Forests, Inc., and administrator of the Governor's Tree Planting Program, were as follows:

Albemarle	500,000
Amherst	550,000
Appomattox	1,300,000
Buckingham	2,000,000
Nelson	400,000

These individual county goals are part of a state-wide goal totaling 30 million seedlings for this third year of the reforestation program, and represent the last of theo verall 75 million goal which originally was established for the 3-year project.

In addition to establishing new county goals, other activities were discussed whereby county forestry committees could assist in creating or maintaining interest in the program during the coming planting season.

Recognition awards were presented to five county committees. Albemarle had exceeded goals set for them last year. Included in these award-winning counties was Appomattox. Last year's goal for this county was 1,000,000. Planted were 1,235,800.

DAIRY COW NUMBERS CONTINUE DOWNWARD

The number of farms keeping milk cows has declined between 4 and 5% annually for the last several years.

However, say dairy specialists at VPI, the size of herds on those dairy farms remaining in the business has gradually increased so that the total decline in dairy cows has been less than 1% per year since 1949.

During the period January 1, 1954, to January 1, 1957, the number of dairy cattle kept declining steadily, but the total decline was only about 4%. During 1956, the number dropped 1%.

The specialists say it is expected that nationally the record large feed supplies and concentrates may tend to slow this rate of decline for the remaining months of 1957. However, most dairy specialists predict that the trend toward fewer but larger herds will continue throughout 1957.

Deadline October 5 For Registration To Vote In General Election

State Senator Chas. T. Moses today urged that every possible effort be made in Appomattox County to get out the maximum vote in the approaching November 5 General Election. A strong and ardent supporter of the Democratic ticket, the Senator pointed out that October 5, thirty days before the election, is the deadline for registration and transfers. He begged that all those who have become 21 years of age this year, register at once, ahead of the October 5 deadline. Such persons do not have to pay 1957 capitation taxes. He asked for information on any such persons, so that every effort could be made to have them register.

He also advised that October 5 is the deadline for any who did pay capitation taxes but have failed to register, or for those who desire to transfer from one precinct to another.

Local leaders are working hard to get applications in for those who vote by mail.

Wheat Reserve Violation Rule

Any time a farmer harvests more wheat acres than he has agreed to under the Soil Bank's 1958 wheat Acreage Reserve program, he not only loses his Acreage Reserve payment but also is subject to a civil penalty, C. D. Lewis, chairman of the Appomattox Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee said today.

"Farmers should be very sure that they understand the provisions of the Acreage Reserve program regarding violations," the chairman commented. "We are most anxious that there be no confusion resulting from misunderstanding."

The chairman explained that there are two acreage limitations that any wheat farmer must comply with if he has land designated under the wheat Acreage Reserve program. These are (1) the "maximum" acreage of wheat — which is the wheat allotment less the wheat acreage put in the acreage reserve, and (2) the "Permitted acreage" which is the farm's Soil Bank base less the wheat acreage put in the Acreage Reserve. (If land has been included in the Conservation Reserve, such land also is deducted in determining the "Permitted acreage.")

The Soil Bank base for a farm is in general the average of Soil Bank base crops harvested on the farm during the past 2 years. Soil Bank base crops include the basics, such as wheat, corn, cotton, tobacco, and peanuts, and generally all crops produced on the farm except hay crops.

Program regulations have recently been modified so that a wheat farmer who exceeds the overall "permitted acreage" — by harvesting excess acreage of some crop other than wheat — loses the entire payment he would have earned by complying with all provisions of the Acreage Reserve program; no civil penalty applies in this case.

However, if the wheat farmer harvests more wheat than his wheat allotment less the land in the Acreage Reserve, the farmer is subject to both loss of his payment and a civil penalty of 50 per cent of the payment.

The civil penalty also applies to such program violations as grazing or harvesting a crop from land designated under an Acreage Reserve agreement.

Appomattox is a growing town.

Car Inspection Next Month

Richmond, Sept. 25.- With the announcement that the forthcoming fall motor vehicle inspection period will be conducted from October 1 through November 15 for passenger cars and during the entire month of December for trucks and buses, Colonel C. W. Woodson, Jr., Superintendent of State Police called attention to three changes which will liberalize the inspection procedure but will not adversely affect traffic safety.

He listed these changes as follows:

1. Recipients of rejection stickers who desire to operate at their own risk will no longer be restricted to driving to and from stations.

2. Inspections will no longer be prohibited in raining weather.

3. A half inch of cloudiness will be permitted along either side the center strip of divided windshields.

"The rejection sticker points out to the motorists the defects in their vehicles. We feel that the individual driver must take upon himself the responsibility of determining the potential dangers of these various defects to his driving. He is in no way relieved of this responsibility by law," Colonel Woodson said.

He further noted that it appeared that modern brakes and car design work to overcome the handicap of a wet surface, yet the same stopping distance standards for dry surface are to be maintained.

In addition to the cloudiness along the center strip of a divided windshield, three inches of cloudiness at the bottom, one-half inch along the outer borders and one-half inch across the top will continue to be permitted.

At the time of every inspection period, Colonel Woodson asked motorists to take advantage of the early weeks of the inspection period rather than wait until the last minute when the stations are invariably jammed.

Reviewing the whole program, he said, "We are always trying to make the inspection program as convenient to the motorists as is compatible with safety."

The Blue Hornets won their second victory last Friday, when they downed Randolph-Henry H. S. by a 14 to 3 score, here. Burl Clements kicked a field goal for Randolph-Henry to put his team ahead 3 to 0 in the second quarter. However, in the second half, the Blue Hornets started rolling, and with Freddie Mitchell, Raymond Massie, Leon Edmonds and Arnold Whitehead doing the ball carrying, they pushed over two touchdowns. Raymond Massie made the first and Freddie Mitchell the second. Leon Edmunds made both extra points. On defense Joey George, Dennis Drinkard, Toots Carter, Charles Crawley, Palmer Moore, Randy Almond, Richard Robinson and Terrell Martin played well.

Coach Gordon Bragg says that this week's game will be a good test for his team, stating that they will be meeting a heavy team of older boys.
